

TREBOTTI FARM:

The TREBOTTI farm was born in the 2003 purchasing some hilly lands that, from a high position on the Teverina's valley and the Alviano's oasis, between Lazio and Umbria, mark the border of the mediaeval villages of Castiglione in Teverina and Civitella D'Agliano, celebrated from many ages for the growing of the vine and the olive, cardinal points of the "Strada del Vino e dei prodotti tipici della Teverina", they are in the neighbourhood of Civita di Bagnoregio, the dying town, near the city of Orvieto, only a stone's throw away from Bolsena's lake. The micro-climate, the exposure and the characteristic feature of the lands are a perfect natural laboratory where experiment and create high quality wine, following organic production.

WINE CELLAR:

The architectural design, by the architect Enzo Mastelloni, is an harmonious structure, blending modern aesthetics with the productive needs, while at the same time respecting the landscape.

The wine-making systems were realized attempting to achieve a modern and efficient wine cellar, making the best of available technologies.

When the vineyards are finished being planted and the cellars are completed, Trebotti's farm will produce 100,000 bottles in a year--a limited production, because of our commitment to making only quality wines.

Because of our commitment to quality and with the help of winemaker Mr. Lorenzo Landi, we believe that the Trebotti will soon be considered among the most important farms of the Teverina area.

VINEYARDS:

The harvest of 2005, the first one of Tre Botti, is the beginning of the firm production, with a range of typical white grapes of Doc Orvieto such as Grechetto, Trebbiano, Malvasia, as well as red variety such as Montepulciano and Sangiovese. The new vineyards are from Montepulciano, Grechetto, selected and local white vine and Aleatico, another typical old-age vine from Tuscia area. The completion of firm vines with Manzoni bianco, is a production opportunity and an homage to lady Giulia, mother of the three Botti brothers, who passed them the experience and passion for agriculture and in particular for viticulture, carried on generation by generation in Treviso area from their family. On the matter of fact, the White Manzoni is a Venetian vine, created by prof. Luigi Manzoni, founder of the School of oenology in Conegliano as well as relative of lady Giulia.
